Everyone knows that a signature sky-blue jewelry box is bound to have something truly spectacular inside. The packaging of an item can say a thousand words about the content before it is even opened. Your CDs and DVDs can also have their own custom and colorful packaging that proclaims their value from the moment they are received in the mail.

Whether you mail discs to your target audience as complimentary lead-generators, send them as part of a subscription program or provide information and products via CD or DVD as part of your business, the way that you package your discs offers valuable opportunities that shouldn't be overlooked.

Produced in cover weight stock, durable and beautiful, these self-mailing packages created exclusively for CDs and DVDs offer valuable real estate for sharing your branding and your message.
